My Groceries to Go!—otherwise known as the Commodity Supplemental Food Program (CSFP)—is a federal program that provides food to low-income seniors. Through partnerships with local nonprofits like the Maryland Food Bank (MFB), the program distributes boxes of nutritious USDA foods into senior communities.

Along with children and the working poor, older Marylanders are among the most at-risk of food insecurity due to circumstances like inconsistent income, limited mobility, and poor health. My Groceries to Go! is critical to ensuring that Maryland’s food-insecure seniors receive the food assistance they need to lead healthy lives.

Who Can Register?

Any Baltimore Metro Area resident 60 years and older with an income level that is at or below 130 percent of the federal poverty income guidelines may apply for My Groceries to Go!.

A senior living alone can receive assistance only if they have an annual income of $15,782 or less; and for seniors living in a household of two and three people, the annual income cut-off is $21,398 and $27,014 respectively.

How Does It Work?

My Groceries to Go! partners with senior centers and other community organizations across Baltimore Metro Area to target low-income seniors who may be eligible to receive assistance.

MFB employees assist clients in filling out their applications, review the necessary documentation, and directly process the applications on site.

The boxes are heavy—between 30 – 40 pounds—and we encourage clients to bring a cart or a helping hand when retrieving their boxes.

A Great Collaboration

In order to provide our clients with this vital resource, MFB works in partnership with the Maryland Department of Aging, other Baltimore area agencies on aging, as well as dozens of partners and city/county housing facilities that serve a primarily senior demographic in the city.

USDA food is delivered regularly to the MFB each month. This food is then packed into boxes by MFB volunteers for distribution at designated pick-up sites.
